

Greenland and the International Politics of a Changing Arctic

With increased geopolitical importance and independent foreign policy ambition, Greenland is making its mark on the Arctic. Still, the international politics of the Arctic is changing. How does Greenland's international relations develop in a changing Arctic, regionally, within the Danish Realm as well as globally?

To address this question and to celebrate the publishing of the anthology "Greenland and the International Politics of a Changing Arctic", Centre for Military Studies and the Center for War Studies (SDU) invite you to a panel debate with four of the book's contributors.

Time and venue

Wednesday 13 December, 15:00-16:30
CSS, Øster Farimagsgade 5, room 7.0.34
(building 7, floor, room 34).

Register here: <http://cms.polsci.ku.dk/events/> no later than Tuesday 12 December

Panelists

Assistant Professor, Camilla N. Sørensen
The Royal Danish Defence College.
Associate Professor, Ulrik Pram Gad
Aalborg University.
Ph.d. Fellow, Marc Jacobsen, University of Copenhagen.
Professor, Klaus Dodds, Royal Holloway University of London

Moderators

Deputy Head of Centre, Kristian Søby Kristensen, CMS and Assistant Professor, Jon Rahbek-Clemmensen, CWS.