

Conference on the Rise of China's Military Forces: How much is enough?

Friday, March 21, 2014

14:00 - 16:00, in room 7.0.40
Department of Political Science
University of Copenhagen
Øster Farimagsgade 5

China's armed forces are the largest in the world. China is number two as concerns military budget. For more than a decade the budget has been expanding over 10% each year.

How much is enough for China?
Are we experiencing a regional arms race in Asia tending to go global?
What is the role of Peoples Liberation
Army and why is it expanding?

Speakers:

- Dennis J. Blasko (key note)
Independent analyst, former senior fellow at the National Defense University, Washington
D.C., and former military attaché in Beijing.
- Liselotte Odgaard
Associate professor, Ph.d., Royal Danish Defence
College
- Bertel Heurlin (introduction and chair)
