In an era of increased great power competition, nuclear arms control once again returns to the fore of the international security agenda. While there are concerns emanating from the entire range of WMD related issues – nuclear, chemical and biological weapons as well as the means for their delivery, including ballistic missiles – the nuclear topic has a particular urgency. The University of Copenhagen’s Centre for Military Studies is therefore proud to host this public seminar.

Speakers:

Jeppe Kofod (Minister of Foreign Affairs of Denmark)
Bonnie Jenkins (Under Secretary for Arms Control and International Security Affairs, US), TBC
James Appathurai (NATO Deputy Assistant Secretary General for Emerging Security Challenges)
Susanne Baumann (Federal Government Commissioner for Disarmament and Arms Control, GE)
Bruno Tertrais (Deputy Director of the Fondation pour la Recherche Stratégique)

Moderator: Henrik Breitenbauch (Director of the Centre for Military Studies)

Date and time: Monday, September 6 at 1000–1200 (coffee and croissants from 0930)
Venue: Dronningesalen at The Royal Library in Copenhagen (Den Sorte Diamant).

Register no later than Thursday September 2 at: https://cms.polsci.ku.dk/events/
The seminar is open to the public and is streamed online.

This seminar is organized in cooperation with Denmark’s Ministry of Foreign Affairs and The Danish Foreign Policy Society as part of the 17th Annual NATO Conference on WMD.
