

Web Seminar: "Strategic Design: Seizing Emerging Opportunities in the Post-COVID Era?"

Governments and Armed Forces, their allies and partners struggle to develop sustainable strategies in the complex strategic environment of the 21st century. The COVID pandemic, climate change driven disasters and the ever increasing sophistication of technologies deployed in conflicts, just to name a few, reveal the difficulty, if not the impossibility to plan and, perhaps, even strategize. Strategic Design, however, suggests that a more systemic and conceptual approach to strategy can still be relevant in this context. At this CMS seminar, Dr. Ofra Graicer, a leading practitioner and instructor of Strategic Design in Israel Defense Forces, and Dr. Robin Holt, the leading theoretician on strategic emergence will introduce strategic design and debate its relevance in the 21st century.

Debate between:

Dr. Ofra Graicer
Chief Instructor, IDF Generals Course
Israeli National Defense College

Dr. Robin Holt
Professor
Copenhagen Business School

Moderator:

Dr. Philippe Beaulieu-Brossard
Marie S. Curie Fellow
Centre for Military Studies, UCPH

Joint organizers: Centre for Military Studies and the Archipelago of Design

Time: Thursday 22 October 2020 at 14:00-15:30

Venue: On Zoom. When you have registered for this event, you will receive an email with a zoom-link.

Read more and register here no later than Wednesday 21 October 2020:

<https://cms.polsci.ku.dk/events/cms-seminar-on-strategic-design-seizing-emerging-opportunities-in-the-post-covid-era/>.